The BPHH business is extremely capital intensive. Operators need lines of credit to supplement internal cash flow and fund the growth in their portfolios. What do these capital providers look for and how can you qualify? How much equity do you need? What advance rate can you expect? Who is lending and what are your options? Capital is the gas that drives the BPHH engine so don't miss this session. How will the new credit loss measurement standards affect their lending? Find the best financial partner for your operation in this interactive workshop session. Then meet with them after the workshop in the Solutions Hall.
